“But will God indeed dwell on the earth? Behold, heaven and the highest heaven cannot contain you; how much less this house that I have built!” 1 Kings 8:27

First of all, I must say that I do not select these verses. They are randomly generated by a site. Having said that, it does not seem that a much more appropriate verse could have been chosen as we prepare for Christmas. This is about the construction of the Temple, the dwelling of God on earth. But we celebrate the true Temple, Jesus Christ, where God chose to be among us in a way that simply boggles the mind. The God Who could not be contained in all of heaven becomes One like us and is contained in human form. Spend time during the Christmas season thinking about that. Strip away the years of “this is what we do” and enter into the mystery of the Incarnation.
