“For whoever does the will of my Father in heaven is my brother and sister and mother.”
Matthew 12:50

Biological family is important. It is the center of society. It is where we receive (or are supposed to receive) our first lessons in living in community. But that is not the limits of what family truly means. Often, there are people who, while not related by blood, are more closely connected to us than our own biological family. The Church should be part of that group. We should receive from its members support just as we should from our family. In the end, we are all children of God. That includes those who do not recognize God. God is still the Father of all.
